

Design Reflection

Personal reflections are extremely valuable to learning. Reflecting helps bring order to ideas; to recall high and low points of the process; and to capture, and give relevance to, those fleeting thoughts and feelings that were born or stirred-up during the creative process. Reflections also help individuals to recognize patterns of struggle and to identify procedures that helped turn the struggle into success.

Please consider the following:

I began this process by

My art work or design aims to communicate or explore

I struggled with these stages of the process:

i.

ii.

iii.

I overcame these struggles by:

i.

ii.

iii.

I disliked, and will in the future avoid,

I enjoyed, and would like to someday again,

This design / artwork can demonstrates these formal qualities (identify elements and principles at play and explain how they are used).